LAS PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As we celebrate the 70th anniversary of the Library Association of Singapore (LAS), I am filled with pride and gratitude for the remarkable journey we have taken together. Over the decades, LAS has played a pivotal role in shaping the landscape of libraries and information services in Singapore.

We have adapted to a rapidly changing landscape, embracing new technologies and methodologies, while staying true to our core mission: to foster learning, growth, and community engagement.

Looking back, I am deeply grateful for the friendships, collaborations, and milestones that have marked this journey. As librarians, we have always found joy in the simple things – like reading a good book or sharing knowledge – and it is this shared sense of purpose that has made our Association strong and enduring.

As we look to the future, I am excited for the new opportunities and challenges that await us. The role of libraries will continue to evolve, but our commitment to serving our communities and nurturing the next generation of information professionals will remain steadfast.

Thank you to everyone who has been a part of this journey—past, present, and future. Here's to the next 70 years of advancing libraries and enriching lives.

Happy 70th Anniversary, Library Association of Singapore!

Soh Lin Li

President

Library Association of Singapore

HISTORY OF LAS & PPM

On 7 January 1955, an informal meeting to discuss the formation of a professional organisation for people engaged in library work was convened at the University of Malaya Library, Singapore with 47 persons in attendance. These included full-time librarians, teacher-librarians and others from both Malaya and Singapore who were interested in the cause. This meeting led to a further series of meetings in which a constitution for the proposed organisation was drafted.

On 25 March 1955, the drafted constitution was formally adopted by 36 members, including 14 from across the Causeway. That meeting was unanimously agreed to by those present at the function as the inaugural meeting of the modest national professional library organisation called the Malayan Library Group. On 6 June 1955, the Group was registered by the Registrar of Societies in Singapore.

The founding of the national group was an important milestone in the history of librarianship for both Malaya and Singapore. The Malayan Library Group assembled for the first time all those who were engaged or interested in library work in the two territories. The fundamental aims of the Group were to unite librarians and to serve as a meeting ground for the exchange of ideas.

In 1958, the Federation of Malaya and Singapore was formed, and the Malayan Library Group changed its name to the Library Association of Malaya and Singapore to reflect that the association covered both territories since it encompassed membership from the two regions. In 1960, the Federation Government decided not to grant registration to pan-Malayan associations. The Library Association of Malaya and Singapore was left without choice but to split into two separate associations, viz. the Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu (Library Association of the Federation of Malaya) which was inaugurated on 16 January 1960, and the Library Association of Singapore which was inaugurated at the extraordinary general meeting held in Singapore on 27 February 1960.

With the formation of Malaysia in 1963, the name of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu was changed to Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (PPM) or the Library Association of Malaysia. The merger of Malaya and Singapore into Malaysia also brought the two separate library associations together again. In January 1964, it was agreed that there should be one library association for Malaysia, with the Library Association of Singapore becoming a branch. On 16 January 1965, the Library Association of Singapore was reconstituted as the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia, Chawangan Singapura (Library Association of Malaysia, Singapore Branch).

The political marriage between Malaysia and Singapore was short-lived as Singapore separated from Malaysia and became an independent Republic on 9 August 1965. Caught in this turn of political events, the Library Association of Malaysia, Singapore Branch once again reverted to an independent library association, and it was reconstituted at the annual general meeting held on 29 January 1966 as the Persatuan Perpustakaan Singapura (Library Association of Singapore). The official Malay name was adopted in line with the Singapore Government's emphasis on using Malay as the national language.

On 25 March 1972, the day the Malayan Library Group was founded 17 years ago, the Persatuan Perpustakaan Singapura formally adopted the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) as its official registered name. In 1998, the PPM constitution was amended to change the name to Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (Librarians Association of Malaysia).

INTERVIEWS

Datin Patricia Lim Pui Huen

*President, Library Association of Singapore
(1968 – 1969)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 1958. I had taken an active part in its activities because I believe that a strong professional organisation is necessary for the development of a strong library profession.

In our first decade, a small enthusiastic group of librarians, then called the Malayan Library Group (MLG), who, infused by the spirit of dedication and cooperation, organised meetings and seminars with colleagues in Malaya. The MLG comprised both local and expatriate librarians and included Mr Wilfred Plumbe and Ms Jean Waller (both from the University of Malaya Library), Mrs Hedwig Anuar (who later became the Director of the National Library), as well as specialists like Ms Kho Lian Tie, who gained international recognition for her work on Indonesian and Malay language materials, and Mr George Ee, Librarian of the Medical Library.

I was elected President of LAS in 1968. I felt that libraries could and should play a public and cultural role in the wider community and therefore, organised a seminar on libraries and the community during my presidency.

Library development during the early period can be attributed to the dedication of the pioneers and to the productive cooperation between LAS and the Library Association of Malaya (later of Malaysia). Regular meetings and annual conferences were held but the most important work was done in the joint committees, especially by JSCLCBS (Joint Subcommittee on Library Cooperation and Bibliographical Standards) later replaced by the shorter acronym BILCO (Bibliographical and Library Cooperation). Long hours went into laying the groundwork for library regulations and standards that librarians take for granted today. These included the adopting of the ISBN, standardising cataloguing rules, and enlarging the Dewey Classification tables for Singapore and Malaysia. The formulation of these standards facilitated library development and brought Singapore libraries into conformity with international practice as well as promoted progress in international information management and communication.

Work on international practices brought LAS into the network of the international community of professional bodies like the International Federation of Library Associations (IFLA). Through LAS, Singapore librarians had a voice in shaping international professional issues.

It is forgotten today that libraries led the way in the adoption of computers into their routines and that Singapore libraries developed a joint cataloguing database way before easy computer access became possible.

I was the Chairman of the Subcommittee of Microforms (SCOM), which coordinated the microfilming of newspapers in Singapore and Malaysia libraries and archives. I was also the Chairman of the Task Force for Librarians in the Information Age (TALIA), which led to the establishment of the Library School in NTU (Nanyang Technological University)—the culmination of decades of struggle for library education since the days of MLG.

It is a matter of much satisfaction to have played a role in initiating and organising the inaugural Congress of Southeast Asian Librarians (CONSAL) in 1970 as a regional platform for librarians and information professionals. Through CONSAL and through the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) Library where I was Librarian, I have met many wonderful people and have made friends from all over the world.

Professionalism, Knowledge, Dedication—these should be the watchwords of our profession.

Chan Thye Seng

*President, Library Association of Singapore
(1972-1973)*

My first point of entry into library service (then Raffles Library) was on 1 June 1959 after completing my A-Level education.

My first exposure to the importance of a library association was my attendance at the Annual General Meeting of the New Zealand Library Association held in New Plymouth in 1962 as a student of the New Zealand Library School in Wellington on a Colombo Plan Scholarship. Librarians, including chief and senior ones, came from various cities including Christchurch, Dunedin and Auckland.

Upon my graduation and return to Singapore the following year, I was able to join LAS as a Professional Member and opted to be a Life Member two years later.

It was an eye-opener with the meetings and get-togethers with staff from national, public, academic, and institutional libraries. The Council could be considered a "think-tank" for the profession, together with its subcommittees.

Fresh from library school, I was invited to stand for election as Honorary Secretary and served for two successive years from 1963 to 1964 with Mrs Hedwig Anuar, LAS founder member and Director, National Library, as Chairman of Council. Working closely together, we had also travelled for joint meetings and conferences with our Malayan/ Malaysian librarians in Seremban, Malacca, Kuala Lumpur, and subsequently Penang by car, train, or plane over a weekend and reporting to office on Mondays. Across the border were our counterparts including the late Mr Syed Ahmad bin Ali, Mr Joseph Soosai, Mr D.E.K. Wijasuriya, and Mr Edward Lim Huck Tee who had also been Chief Librarians in their institutions and past Presidents of PPM.

Upon our country's political separation from Malaysia in 1965, the future looked bleak. Undaunted, LAS took part in a careers exhibition at the Victoria Memorial Hall from 1 to 7 September 1965. We had the theme To Be a Librarian. Our then Prime Minister, Mr Lee Kuan Yew, officially opened the exhibition.

In 1970, Mrs Anuar and I were the two conference paper presenters from Singapore at CONSAL I, which was the first Conference of Southeast Asian Librarians held in Singapore.

1963/1964 LAS-PPPTM Joint Liaison Council Meeting in Kuala Lumpur

1969 LAS-PPM Joint Seminar on "Planning for the 70's" held in Singapore

1972 Commonwealth Library Association Council's Inaugural Meeting in Lagos, Nigeria

As President of LAS in 1972, I represented our association on the founding of COMLA (Commonwealth Library Association) at Lagos, Nigeria.

With LAS setting up its new Standing Committee on Library Education, a five-course lecture on Computer Application in Libraries was organised for our members in 1973. During that same year at CONSAL II in the Philippines, a joint paper with Ms Wee Joo Gim on Professionalisation and Career Development Opportunities of Librarians in Singapore was delivered. LAS had also nominated me to present a paper Planning Public Library Buildings: The Singapore Experience at the third IFLA Building Seminar in Bremen, Germany in 1977.

In my overseas travels for the profession, first to the United States of America on a US State Department's Multi-National Librarians' programme in 1970, and later to United Kingdom on a British Council's library tour in 1972, I noticed the preponderance of male Chief Librarians, even during my time in New Zealand in 1962.

In contrast to this, I had written and published the article What Makes a LAS President? in the December 1981 LAS newsletter, covering the years 1959 to 1980. Prior to that, the post was held chiefly by expatriates. Between 1959 and 1980, there had been 10 Presidents, equally balanced in numbers between men and women, although males formed 13 percent of the total membership. It was also noted that seven of the Presidents were from the university libraries. However, those who had served four terms/years or more were three women. True grit and resilience!

Looking to the future of LAS, I am filled and enthused with our young librarians coming forward to serve with "vim and vigour". Even if one may not be professionally qualified yet, one can be "roped" in to serve at subcommittee or organisational levels. This augurs well for the profession. The learning process is in the undertaking, then follows the resultant contributing factor, "I serve because I was called".

In three words for our LAS's Silver Jubilee (1955-1980) publication, I had closed my then memoir with "Viva la LAS".

For this one, upon request, choices are "Love Aspiration Singapura" and "Together We Globalise".

Dato' Dr Zaiton binti Osman

*President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia
(1983-1984)*

I first joined Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (PPM) as a member in 1971, two years after being appointed as a Library Assistant at the University of Malaya in 1969. At that time, fresh graduates who were appointed as Library Assistants had to sit for and pass the exams of the Associate of the Library Association, London (ALA) within three years before being put on the 'qualified' librarians' salary scale. It was quite a daunting task because most of us were juggling being married with children and working full-time. Obtaining the ALA certification was no mean feat but fortunately, all of us managed to do it within two to three years. On hindsight, I am personally of the opinion that the practical experience gained while working made it easier for me to pass the exams. The books for reading and reference were prescribed by ALA and the contents were very much British-based.

What motivated me to join PPM was, at that time, a natural progression of my career as a Librarian. Being exposed to the Library Association, London via the ALA exams, I was thus aware of a thriving library profession in the United Kingdom (UK) as well as in other parts of the world. Vicariously exposed no doubt, but it made me realise that librarianship was a serious profession and that librarians are important agents of cultural and educational development throughout the world.

We at the University of Malaya Library (UML) then were very aware of the activities undertaken by the Library Association, London and especially of its role in providing professional leadership in the UK directly and the world indirectly. The senior librarians in UML also played a role in motivating us junior librarians into joining PPM, as well as being involved in library activities outside UML.

PPM was a familiar name as a result of the active involvement of the senior librarians from UML. Prominent library professionals like Mr Edward Lim, Dr Wijasuriya, Mr Soong Mun Wai, Mr Eddie Yeoh, Mr Baradas Gopal, Mrs Hedwig Anuar, Mr Soosai, Mr Aziz Mydin, Mr Syed Salim Agha, and Mr Syed Ahmad bin Ali were icons who inspired us junior librarians. These names and more provided the catalyst for the professional growth of the then-fledgling association. Even during this period, the senior librarians were already involved at the regional and international levels, like Mr Soosai who was already an active participant in IFLA.

As a new member of PPM and a mother of one in 1971, it was a hectic few years as I became very involved in PPM activities. The outstanding advantages of being a new member then was the ability to form friendships with librarians from all type of libraries, which have lasted till today. For me, the bonds that began in 1971 saw fruition in 2018 when PPM organised the IFLA WLIC Conference in Kuala Lumpur with a committee of 24 members comprising of librarians from the National Library, university libraries, special libraries, public libraries, school libraries, library schools, and retired librarians. It was an outstanding success due mainly to the fact that the organising committee displayed extraordinary teamwork that resulted in excellent delivery.

During my first term in Council in 1971, the person who left a deep impression on me was Mrs Anuar who came from across the Causeway because she was unmatched in terms of professionalism. Most importantly, she came across as an ideal leader, blending professionalism in her work and yet, was very warm and nurturing in her approach to new librarians. A few other leaders were totally professional but lacking in the personal attributes. Looking back, I learnt about leadership by observing these icons.

I decided to run for 28th President in 1983 because I thought it was time to do so. At that time, nobody wanted to be President because everybody had full-time jobs and since PPM was a voluntary organisation, balancing institutional demands with PPM work was daunting. Sometime back in 1982, my group of like-minded friends and I decided that we should be better able to help PPM progress by being involved at the Presidential and Council level.

I started in 1983 as President followed by Dato' Zawiyah Baba in 1984 and till today, I am still actively involved in PPM activities. The post of the President during my time was not something to shout about— no glamour, pomp, or pageantry and certainly no financial or social rewards. It was just hard work. And this is where the bonds formed in the earlier years helped because Council members pitched in unstintingly and made volunteerism a vocation till today.

My vision as President was encapsulated in the speech I made at the PPM Annual General Meeting on 24 March 1984 at Rumah Universiti, University of Malaya: "Throughout 1983 to 1984, the Council focused on the professional development of PPM members. Towards this objective, priority was given to the organisation of services, courses, forums, and workshops. Through such activities the knowledge of, exposure to, and experience of members in the fields of librarianship and related fields were enhanced."

It was no accident that I had just completed my Master's thesis on The Role of Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (Library Association of Malaysia) in Providing Professional Leaderships in Malaysia. At that time, fellow librarians were calling for PPM and its members to be “professional” but were not exactly sure what being professional meant. This call for professionalism coincided with my undertaking of a Master’s degree at the Loughborough University of Technology. I thought it was time I studied the concept of professionalism in greater depth and apply it to PPM’s role. That was in 1982. PPM has progressed in leaps and bounds since then. Maybe it is now time for us to review the topic.

During my presidency, my best memory was about organising seminars, forums, and workshops particularly in important areas that were new to librarians, e.g. information skills (now known as information literacy, quantitative methods, resource-based learning, etc.), even inviting librarians from the UK to present papers. I felt that exposure to concepts and ideas from abroad would help local librarians to think beyond their usual areas of work like acquisitions, cataloguing, and reference services. One workshop organised during my presidency which was invaluable was the talk by experts about professional education—Developing the Core Curriculum for Library Education. This was held on 11 June 1983 at Dewan Sri Paduka, Intan, Petaling Jaya. This forum was an attempt by PPM at professionalising library education in Malaysia.

PPM, even before my time as President, was outward-looking. I merely pushed the boundary further. The previous Presidents were concerned about making PPM and PPM members “professional”. PPM made a critical move in 1995 when via a constitutional amendment, it reconstituted PPM’s membership. By virtue of this amendment, PPM members are classed into three categories—professional, non-professional, and institutional. The basis of separating the professionals from the non-professionals (the qualified from the non-qualified members) is “a recognised professional qualification”. The possession of this qualification is the passport to membership of PPM and carries with it the right to vote and hold office. Theoretically, since 1995, there now exists in PPM, a group that is competent to oversee the Association, safe-guard professional interests, and maintain professional standards.

One thing that I have enjoyed throughout my years of involvement with PPM till today is meeting librarians from all over the world. Interacting via PPM-LAS meetings, workshops, seminars, and conferences via CONSAL and IFLA provided me with such invaluable and unparalleled experience.

Three words to describe the essence of PPM—volunteerism, team-work, and professionalism. I would advise future Presidents to first understand the role of an association in the context of the profession and then undertake strategies that can help to further professionalise the library profession. They should also have the courage to lead and not be distracted or intimidated by institutional objectives.

The role of the association is to provide leadership for the profession at the national, regional, and international levels. The association of the future must strive to put its membership on par with other professions like lawyers, doctors, engineers, etc.; in short, masters of their own professions. The association of the future must strive to ensure that it alone controls the destiny of its members, independent of authorities, and recognised for professional standards.

Farewell by PPM

With the former President of IFLA, Glòria Pérez-Salmerón, on her visit to Kuala Lumpur in 2018

Working with the Ministry of Tourism, Arts and Culture or IFLA WLIC 2018

Dato' Zawiyah binti Baba

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia/Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (1984-1986; 2001-2005)

In 1974, I joined Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (PPM) as a member because I thought that it was the best way to meet other librarians and visit other libraries. This was a year after I started working as Research Librarian at the Ministry of Information Malaysia, Angkasapuri, Kuala Lumpur (KL). It was my first public service appointment as a librarian after obtaining the Post-Graduate Diploma in Librarianship at the College of Librarianship Wales, UK. I was the only professional librarian in the Ministry at the time. Most of my peers who studied overseas were posted to the National Library of Malaysia or to university libraries.

My first introduction to PPM was when a senior librarian whom I was friendly with invited me to attend a meeting of the PPM Lottery Project Committee. It was not an entirely happy introduction as the Chairman and committee members felt it was inappropriate for a newbie to attend this meeting. Nevertheless, they allowed me to stay as an observer and I agreed to help with the sale of the lottery tickets as suggested. It was my first PPM project and I saw first-hand how willingly librarians from all sectors committed and dedicated themselves to a voluntary cause. After that, I took every opportunity to attend PPM functions, especially those at special libraries so that I could meet the librarians and visit their libraries.

Not long after, I met the members of the Special Libraries Committee and I was soon involved with their work. Keen and enthusiastic, I became its Honorary Secretary and learnt a lot about organising activities such as talks, seminars, and forums as well as worked on compiling the Directory of Special Libraries in Malaysia. As secretary, I was also involved with Council projects such as preparing the first Guidelines for Special Libraries. It would be true to say that I honed my organising and leadership skills while serving in the Special Libraries Committee and PPM Council.

One of the people who left a deep impression on me was Datin Ragayah Eusoff, who was Chairman of the Special Libraries Committee and later, the President of PPM. I worked with her on the Special Libraries Committee and PPM Council when I was Vice-President. I admired her as a library professional and how well she ran the Bank Negara (Central Bank) Library as well as served in various PPM leadership positions. It was amazing how she balanced official, professional, and personal commitments and I always wondered how she managed to juggle her multifarious tasks of running an excellent library at the Central Bank; sending the children to school, tuition classes, swimming, and other extracurricular activities; while ensuring domestic chores were done. She inspired me in how she did not allow her professional duties and domestic chores deter her from doing voluntary work.

Two others who left an impression were Dr Donald Wijasuriya and Mr Edward Lim Huck Tee, former Presidents of PPM, who, apart from efficiently running the National Library and Universiti Sains Library respectively, were prolific writers. I greatly admire their writing skills and the excellent contributions they made to the library profession's international journals.

Another who left a deep impression was Dato' Dr Zaiton Osman, one of my oldest friends in PPM, for her professionalism, deep interest, and commitment to the Association. In fact, she wrote a thesis on The Role of the Library Association in Preparing Members for New Trends for her Master's degree. We shared numerous discussions on PPM and librarianship issues throughout the years and have been involved in organising many activities together as we have both served in various capacities including post-retirement.

I first became President in 1984 after serving as Vice-President before that, so it was a natural progression. During this term, my focus was on fundraising. In one project, the Mount Kinabalu Expedition, fundraising was combined with the added objective of familiarising librarians and libraries in Peninsular Malaysia with those in Sabah. The Mount Kinabalu expedition saw 10 librarians from West Malaysia and 10 librarians from Sabah participating with pledges of sponsorship of RM5,000 per participant. All participants succeeded in reaching the 13,455-foot peak. It was certainly a memorable event for PPM although we did not raise as much money as we had hoped to. An account of the expedition entitled The Call of Kinabalu was published in the National Library of Malaysia journal Sekitar in 1985. Actually, fundraising was an important activity in the early days of PPM. We organised a series of Book Bangs (sale of pre-loved and unsold books), the PPM lottery, film premieres, stage plays, tea dances, fashion shows, and courses.

In 1978, I produced a stage play of Emyln Williams' Night Must Fall directed by an American Peace Corp colleague from the Ministry of Information. Popular actor Mano Maniam, accomplished dancer Sukania Venugopal, Garden School Principal Mary Arshad, and others volunteered their talents ranging from acting to set and costume designing.

I served for a second term from 1985 to 1986 as PPM was planning to acquire its own building. We succeeded in doing so before I ended my term in March 1986. PPM was renting shop and building spaces, and even using a Council member's home at one time. It was not only inconvenient and cumbersome, but also placed extra burden to keep raising funds to offset rental and administrative costs. With funds from the Lottery Fund project combined with bonds and shares invested in the past, the Council was able to purchase a two-storey shop lot for its Secretariat Office and additional space which could be rented out for regular income. After going through the necessary constitutional amendments and Extraordinary General Meetings to obtain members' approval, we finally purchased the building in 1986, freeing PPM of long-term financial commitments.

In 2001, I was approached by the President and Vice-President of the outgoing Council to take over the PPM leadership. I was Deputy Director-General of the National Library then. Persuaded by the Director-General Cik Shahar Banun Jaafar at the time, I agreed to stand for elections and was duly elected President for the 2001 to 2003 term.

One of the highlights during this term was the joint-hosting of the International Conference on Asian Digital Libraries (ICADEL) with the National Library and the National University (UKM), held from 8 to 12 December 2003. Themed Digital Libraries: Technology and Management of Indigenous Knowledge for Global Access, the highly successful conference was officially opened by then Minister of Education, Tan Sri Musa Mohamed and attended by 300 participants, including 80 from overseas. PPM made special efforts in 2003 to bond with our Sarawak counterparts by organising library workshops in Kuching and organising expeditions to the Mulu caves at the Gunung Mulu National Park via Miri in Sarawak. We were greatly honoured when the Chairman of the Pustaka Negeri Sarawak Library Board, Tan Sri Hamid Bugo joined us for this unforgettable expedition.

I was re-elected President for another two-year term (2003 to 2005) when I voluntarily stood for election to help plan programmes to celebrate PPM and Library Association of Singapore's (LAS) 50th anniversary in 2005. Nine major programmes were organised, which was launched at a gala dinner graced by then Deputy Prime Minister Dato' Sri Najib Abdul Razak and his wife Datin Sri Rosmah Mansor at Hotel Istana, KL on 6 April 2005. One of the programmes organised was the PPM-LAS Commemorative Conference chaired by Dato' Dr Zaiton Osman that included guest speakers from South Africa and India.

PPM also honoured five eminent persons as Honorary Members, namely the late Tan Sri Dato' Dr Mohd Rashdan Haji Baba, Y.M. Tengku Dato' Azman Sharifadeen, Dato' Dr Halim Shafie, Dato' Dr Ibrahim Bajunid, and Dato' Dr Shamsul Amri Baharuddin, all of whom had made significant contributions to the development of libraries in Malaysia. They joined Mrs Hedwig Anuar who was PPM's sole Honorary Member at the time. PPM's Library Excellence Awards was also inaugurated that year for both large and small of libraries.

A series of PPM Presidential talks was held with the first talk delivered by Datin Ragayah Eusoff (President, 1980 to 1981) and a voluntary mission known as PPM Iqra' Mission led by Rohani Rustam, Hasbullah Atan and me was also dispatched to Aceh to gauge the support needed by libraries after the devastation of the tsunami and to provide rebuilding assistance. The mission's work was documented in a book entitled Aceh Reads On: The PPM Iqra' Mission in Post-Tsunami Aceh published by PPM in 2011.

Having worked with PPM over the years, we developed firm friendships with colleagues from other libraries, including those from LAS, other ASEAN countries as well as IFLA member countries. I recall the Kinabalu Expedition with my good friend Noor Aini Osman who supported me right up to the peak, as well as the endless discussions over tea and pisang goreng about issues relating to librarianship especially with my oldest and dearest friend, Dato' Dr Zaiton Osman.

I enjoyed our joint Bibliographic and Library Cooperation (BILCO) and other meetings with LAS in Singapore and KL, visiting each other's libraries and learning from each other especially in the 1970s and 1980s. Many colleagues continue to support and serve PPM in various roles after retirement. It was significant to note that many important positions in the National Committee for IFLA WLIC 2018 were held by retired librarians who had worked with PPM over the last few decades, underscoring the importance of voluntary associations like PPM to maintain good relationships with retired professional librarians.

As a volunteer-run association, it may not be smooth-sailing and free from criticism when you want to embark on what seems a worthwhile and justifiable project as there will be differences of opinions and suspicions, apart from competing interests. Hence, to future Presidents, you must believe in what you want to do, do it for the right reasons, convince a core group of supporters, and proceed to give your best and make it a success regardless.

I would certainly like to see more young librarians join the association early in their careers and be involved with the activities of the profession at different levels. It is a great way to network, learn from each other, develop your confidence and leadership potential, and take advantage of the many opportunities which present itself to become more visible at a professional, national, regional, and even, international level.

Jenny Soh

(1989-1991)*

I first joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 1961. I was a library assistant at the Singapore Polytechnic library then, and I attended a course that LAS was conducting, which prompted me to sign up for a membership. After attending one meeting and finding it very interesting, I became active in the association, and eventually became a member of a sub-committee. I was very young then, and always attended committee gatherings. I was very impressed by the Chief Librarians like Mrs Anuar, Mrs Hochstadt, and Mrs Yeap, because they were very involved in the association. They were very capable and constantly encouraged each other. Subsequently, all of them also became Presidents of LAS in their time.

I continued to serve actively in LAS even after I left the Singapore Polytechnic library and went on to become the Head of the research library at the then Singapore Broadcasting Corporation (SBC).

The LAS was always a very forward-looking association, and we conducted courses on computer systems in the libraries from 1978. In my time with LAS, I also started the Special Libraries section. This section came about because I realised that it was difficult for librarians to find certain information requested by patrons or researchers. I would often have to contact the Ministry of Foreign Affairs library or the National Library, to find what was requested. With the creation of the Special Libraries section, we would be able to get together to share resources and enlarge the library profession.

Library associations are very important, especially when it comes to getting to know others in the profession. When I was a member, I attended joint seminars with PPM and PPS (Persatuan Perpustakaan Singapura, which was later renamed LAS). We made friends with the Malaysian librarians and visited their libraries in Kuala Lumpur. These seminars were always very popular. The first one I attended was in 1969, when we were planning for the future of libraries in the 1970s. At that time, we not only made visits to the Malaysian libraries, but also to the ones in Thailand.

One of the best memories that I have of my presidency was organising a particularly well-attended seminar. I was, of course, happy to see people attending and participating, but what I remember most was how the sub-committee worked so well together and made the seminar almost painless to organise! I worked with some highly capable and very helpful people, one of whom was my secretary Ms Glenda Gwee.

Now that we are in the age of the Internet, librarians should be equipped and trained to find information faster and better than everybody else. Even on the Internet where information is supposed to be easy to find, certain websites are difficult to navigate especially when you are looking for specific information. In the future, librarians should look to set up a system that allows us to seek information quickly and efficiently.

Choy Fatt Cheong

(1997-2005)*

I was LAS President for four terms from 1997 to 2005, a total of eight years. During this time, I went through three jobs—as principal lecturer at Temasek Polytechnic, consultant of my own company, and University Librarian at Nanyang Technological University (NTU)! I was persuaded by Ms Isabel Yeo, my predecessor, to run for President because sadly, it seemed that no one at senior levels in the profession wanted to take on the role then.

I was quite reluctant, as I was extremely busy with setting up a new diploma course and starting my family as well (I guess others have similar excuses too). However, I felt obliged to contribute further to LAS, as I believed that there is no profession without a strong professional body. I was grateful that in the previous 10 years (I joined in 1984), LAS had given me the opportunity to grow professionally and to experience the camaraderie in the profession. I developed valuable soft skills that I would not have gained by just merely working. I decided then that I should take on the role and find ways to balance and manage my time.

Joint Liaison Council (JLC) of LAS/PPM, 1997

I did not expect to hold the presidency for eight years! Every election year, I hoped that someone suitable would come forward to take over. However, I was always returned unopposed except for the last term when there was a strong contestant, clearly nominated by a large institution. As I felt that the independence of LAS was at stake, I decided to throw in the gauntlet. The election was full of drama, unusual for LAS—there were campaigning in both camps, election speeches, and nail-biting tension, but I managed to retain the presidency. It was a memorable event for me, and I am sure for LAS members too.

As to be expected, there were numerous memorable stories during my term of office, too many to recount here. One event I enjoyed a lot was leading a small delegation of 12 LAS members to the Glasgow IFLA Conference in 2002. After the Conference, we did a grand tour of the United Kingdom (UK) libraries all the way to the South, covering Newcastle, Manchester, Oxford, the British Library, and Blackwell Bookshop. The Information Service Team

(INS) at the British Council in the UK assisted us in organising our itinerary. They were extremely hospitable and warm, culminating in a memorable dinner reception at the Lowry Theatre restaurant in Manchester. They set an example for me to emulate when hosting visiting professionals or delegations for the rest of my career.

Dinner reception for LAS delegation at Lowry Theatre in Manchester hosted by Grace Kempster, Director of BC Information Services Team (2002)

Leading a professional body made up entirely of volunteers requires a different skillset from being appointed as a leader of paid employees. Through my time in LAS, I have learned to rely more on persuasion and negotiation to carry out projects and even for the simplest routine tasks. It was fortunate that most of our professional colleagues were cooperative and shared the same desire for the advancement of the profession. Of course, there will always be people who disagree with what we do, but I tried to maintain a collegial relationship with everyone.

One of the most valuable experiences that LAS offers then and now is the opportunity to network with fellow colleagues across the entire spectrum of libraries in Singapore. As President, I also had the privilege of meeting many other leaders outside of our profession. Also, through our relationship with PPM, CONSAL, IFLA, and other international bodies, I was exposed to the varied aspirations and work culture of librarians in other countries. All these experiences heightened my understanding of the critical issues in libraries and librarianship. I felt that I had a good grasp of the profession, which gave me a lot of confidence and inspiration in my own work.

I had a memorable and adventurous career as a librarian, one that I would not have imagined when I first started out as a trainee librarian at NUS when I was 28. My involvement in LAS was instrumental, directly, and indirectly, to the great satisfaction I enjoyed and whatever little success I achieved in my 35-year long career.

Sylvia Yap

*President, Library Association of Singapore
(2005-2007)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 1973 when I started work in the then Singapore University Library.

At that time, LAS members were a small closely knitted community. I was struck by their commitment, enthusiasm, and wonderful camaraderie. The high level of professionalism exhibited by the pioneer librarians were inspiring. I felt compelled to join their exciting journey to grow the profession and build bridges to knowledge to serve the nation. I was drawn into a world that was very new to me; I was exposed to new cultural and literary experiences that were eye opening for me, a science student.

The Association also organised many activities such as talks, conferences, regular meetings, and parties. These provided excellent platforms to gel friendships and for mentoring. Personally, the interactions further deepened my belief that I made a good choice. Members had to serve on several committees at a time and that bonded us further. The friendship forged further facilitated library cooperation in Singapore and with our Malaysian counterparts. They were fun times.

I thought that it was time for me to take on more responsibilities to serve LAS after reaping so many fruits for many years. I should start walking the talk. I was concerned about the waning image of the profession. I hoped to explore how we could change the image of the profession and grow the LAS membership base. LAS is a platform to promote our profession and provide avenues for members to grow professionally.

I had many exciting experiences of which the following were most memorable:

- LAS/PPM's 50th anniversary celebration which started in Kuala Lumpur and concluded with the Golden Jubilee Dinner held at Concorde Hotel, Singapore. The dinner was a night of reminiscences and a golden opportunity for the Association to honour and recognise members for their past contributions. I was deeply touched by the spirit of our comradeship that night. The celebration cake, a lapis tingkat, was a great representation of our shared identity with the Malaysians.
- The launch of the Professional Development Scheme (PDS). This was in response to formally recognising professional development and to help raise our professional status.

- The establishment of a LAS Award Panel to identify and honour members who had rendered or have a potential to render outstanding service to the profession.
- I remember when we were preparing for a CONSAL Conference at Shangri-La Hotel until very late at night, and we still did not have dinner yet. Shangri-La's food was a bit pricey so we sent someone out to buy food. The person could only get hard-boiled eggs as all the shops nearby were closed. We all had a good laugh and hardboiled eggs never tasted better.

I salute all future Presidents for taking up the challenge to lead LAS. It will not be easy. But from my experiences, I can promise you new friendships, fun, much laughter, and a great sense of achievement.

I hope to see a new continual flow of enthusiastic professionals. I hope that members will continue to uphold our established traditional professional name "Librarian".

Like all professions, we should be proud of our professional identity. Librarians like doctors, engineers, nurses, etc. are terms that describe the profession traditionally. Once you modernise the professional term, you start to remove the profession from the public's established perception. How many times can we change a name and still keep it meaningful?

We should focus instead, on the products and services that we can provide as Librarians. It is the products and services that define us. Change our services and products to stay relevant to our users but never our professional description. Long live Librarianship!

Ngian Lek Choh

(2007-2009)*

When I joined the National Library in 1977, Mrs Hedwig Anuar, then Director, National Library, mandated that we join the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) and take up official positions. For me, this was something that I welcomed, to get to know more librarians working in different libraries and a means for me to learn. As a new member, I would join the LAS activities and then, join the LAS Committees to participate and contribute in its efforts. I found the experience interesting and enjoyable.

Lee Boon Yang (Minister for Information, Communications and the Arts) presenting Hedwig Anuar with the LAS Lifelong Contribution Award at Singapore Library Week 2007

Many of the old-timers were very committed and passionate in the LAS. Apart from Mrs Anuar, others that left deep impressions on me include Mr R Ramachandran, Mr Choy Fatt Cheong, Ms Ch'ng Kim See, Mrs Patricia Lim, Ms Sylvia Yap, Ms Julie Sabaratnam, and many of the younger librarians who would join committees and contribute. Members were, and still are today, very committed and passionate about their profession, keen to share their experience, and keen to learn from each other.

Being in LAS for so many years made me feel that I could also contribute in the capacity as President, hence the decision to run for the position. I hoped to create more interactions between members to facilitate learning and growth amongst members. I also hoped that members could cultivate a stronger sense of being in a shared professional field and to grow the profession.

One of the best memories during my term was when we participated in the Ministry of Manpower's (MOM) professional development programme and developed a roadmap for librarians and para-professional staff. We also developed training programmes for paraprofessional staff as at the time, there was no structured training programmes for them. LAS members took certification from MOM's programme and became nationally recognised trainers.

LAS was, and still is, a place for librarians to network and grow at all times, regardless of experience and positions held. I would say that the essence of the association can be summarised in three words— growth, friendship, camaraderie. The friendship and camaraderie amongst members, regardless of age and experience struck me as something really special in LAS.

LAS Innovation to Serve Conference, 2008

To future Presidents, I hope that they will focus on the needs of members and find out from the members what they wish to see LAS doing. To also organise more activities for members to meet and interact with each other. I hope that LAS can also participate more in IFLA and CONSAL to raise regional and international presence and impact, and to engage more LAS members in external activities to raise their awareness and widen their horizons in librarianship.

LAS AGM 2009

Dato' Raslin bin Abu Bakar

*President, Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia
(2008-2010)*

I became a member of The Librarians Association of Malaysia, also known as Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (PPM) in 1985. It was the year that I first held the position of Librarian at the National Library of Malaysia, also known as Perpustakaan Negara Malaysia (PNM). I came to know about PPM while I was studying Library and Information Science at Institut Teknologi MARA (ITM) now known as Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM), from 1979 to 1982.

Young librarians like myself could not only work as librarians at various institutions in our country but we could also become members of an association where we could become professional members.

When I first started out as a member, I only attended the Annual General Meetings (AGMs), talks, short courses, and library seminars organised by PPM. Then in 1989, the then Director-General of the PNM and President of the PPM, Datin Mariam Abdul Kadir offered me the position of Honorary Secretary. Thereafter, I remained the Honorary Secretary for two subsequent terms from 1991 to 1995. After that, I became less active but continued as a regular member from 1996 to 2000 due to the increasing challenging tasks in my career. However, I became active once again by becoming a PPM Council member for the 2001/2003 and 2005/2007 terms, subsequently holding the position of President and Past President of PPM for the 2008/2010 and 2010/2012 terms respectively.

I was in awe of those who once held the position of PPM President while I was serving as PPM Honorary Secretary from 1989 to 1995. At that time, I was merely a young officer who had recently become aware of PPM and needed guidance from those who had experience in the library world. Among them were Datin Mariam Abdul Kadir, the late Puan Sri Rugayah Abdul Rashid, Mr Chew Wing Foong, and Mr R. Ramachandran (Library Association of Singapore). I wish to record a word of appreciation to all of them.

Armed with the knowledge and experience of being an active member in PPM for almost 20 years and my appointment as the Director-General, PNM in 2008, I began to feel confident to lead PPM. Coincidentally, that year was also election year for the 2008/2010 term of PPM Council members. I did not contest for the post and instead, was cordially offered the position by then PPM President Puan Putri Saniah Megat Abdul Rahman. This confidence was further strengthened by the support from my Department Head of Service and other librarians at the time.

When taking over the PPM leadership, my vision was to firstly, raise PPM's recognition especially among the government ministries like the Ministry of Unity, Culture, Arts and Heritage, which the PNM is part of. Secondly, I hoped to increase PPM cooperation with PNM in human capital development. Thirdly, I wanted to encourage the establishment of PPM branches by zone in order to attract more librarians to become members and increase branch activities. Lastly, it was to strengthen the existing relationship with the librarians' association in the ASEAN countries and CONSAL.

During my term, we successfully convinced the Ministry to provide a PPM Secretariat Office space in the National Library's building in 2008 for free where it still is today. We were able to hold a Digital Library Seminar in collaboration with PNM to expose Malaysian librarians to the concept of digital libraries that was first discussed at the Asia-Pacific level at that time. The PPM branches are now more established and has become a platform for the librarians to mobilise activities in their respective zones. The good relationship has much improved via various activities planned and implemented through CONSAL.

During my terms as President and Past President of PPM from 2008 to 2012, I had the opportunity to attend a very interesting CONSAL Executive Board Annual Meeting. Usually, it is attended by the Director-General of libraries of every ASEAN country and/or the representatives and President of the ASEAN library associations. I had the opportunity to attend two CONSAL meetings that were held in Vietnam (2009) and in Bali, Indonesia (2012) respectively. During these sessions, the librarians had the opportunity to meet and discuss the development of libraries in their respective countries and to foster and strengthen their friendships and networking.

I enjoyed meeting various parties from within Malaysia and abroad through their courtesy visits to the office. We would discuss about library development, book publishing, and organising of joint activities, etc. Among them were visits from librarians of Taiwan, South Korea, Brunei, Singapore, United Arab Emirates, India, Bangladesh, and many others. My biggest disappointment was when PPM and PNM failed the bid to host IFLA conferences for the years 2010 and 2013 in Malaysia. These were years when I was Director-General of PNM, as well as PPM President and PPM Past President in 2010 and 2013 respectively.

Three essences of the association to me:

- Professionalism. A professional association that plays a specific role to advance the archetypes of the library profession as a whole;
- In Trend. Provide current trends in librarianship via its programmes and activities to its members; and
- Recognition. The association as a recognised organisation that will speak for the profession as a whole. The authority must be given by its large numbers of members who possess the common sets of ethics and thinking.

Recently, more experienced and knowledgeable librarians have retired. I believe there are more than 200 of them. Many retirees that still support PPM have become lifelong members and they have faithfully paid their annual fees since becoming members for eons. Does their librarianship knowledge stop when they retire or are they only invited once a year to attend the AGM to listen and review the reports presented? I would like to recommend for PPM and CONSAL to encourage our retired librarians to move into interest groups of their own choice, to be engaged in activities such as courses and talks, to be part of library establishment advisory services, as well as to collect and disseminate digital information according to their extensive experience. It is very important that they have the freedom to carry out these activities under the parasol of PPM.

The association exists due to the support of the members, so PPM needs to continue to convince the members that the association is very important and can actually help them. One of the benchmarks for the success of an association is the support of its members and ability to help them actively.

Puspa Yeow

(2009-2011)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in the late 1990s. I remember attending an Annual General Meeting (AGM) where Mr Ramachandran did a rally call for librarians to step forward and to serve LAS, especially in taking up council appointments. I was relatively new to librarianship then and was awed by his dedication and passion.

As a new member, I mainly attended the AGMs. It was more exciting during the election years. My attitude at the time was that I would support my professional association by becoming a member and attending events. As a junior librarian then, there was not much networking and I hardly knew librarians from other institutions, unlike those in the senior positions who seemed to know each other so well. They were so cool!

*Bid to host the 2013 WLIC: 79th IFLA
General Conference and Assembly*

My journey to becoming president started with a call one late morning from Ms Sylvia Yap, the then LAS president and NUS University Librarian. She planted the seed of LAS Council succession planning and the need for each of us to play our part and step up to contribute to our profession. I agreed to run for the Vice-President post and a term later, ran for President. During my term, I was always hopeful that we could make a difference and dare to take on a challenge to bring LAS to greater heights, sharing the same sentiments as my predecessors that we would continue to reinforce the positive image of librarians as valuable professionals.

My best memories during my presidency were of the challenges to deliver new initiatives such as programmes for the members, which brought a sense of achievement and satisfaction, and also served to bring the members closer. We were not short of volunteers to help at our conferences and events. The networking was alive and the bonding was strong. One of my sweetest memories was on 14 July 2010, when LAS made a commitment to partner National Library Board Singapore (NLB) to bid for the hosting of the 2013 WLIC 79th IFLA General Conference and Assembly which we won! That was a game changer.

During my term with the Council, there were two people who inspired me to go the extra mile in serving LAS, and they were none other than Ms Sylvia Yap and Ms Ngian Lek Choh, my predecessors. They coached and mentored me as preparation to take on the leadership role as President of the LAS. They were encouraging and patient in giving me advice, despite their highly busy schedule. I learnt so much from them at council meetings.

Our Honorary Secretary Ms Wong Choy Ming also worked tirelessly to arrange for meetings and to ensure that all the minutes were ready for circulation and to get the all-important Annual Report compiled with the latest updates from the committees. Therefore, I would also like to pay tribute to the Honorary Secretaries who are the ones responsible for the smooth administration of the LAS Councils.

Having said that, everyone in the Council played a very important role and we worked well as a team. We deeply appreciated everyone's contribution especially since council work took up a lot of our personal time. I was deeply privileged and equally fortunate to have worked with a dedicated, enthusiastic, and passionate team of Council members where warm friendships and camaraderie were forged. We started off almost as strangers but at the end of the two-year term, we got to know each other better, developed camaraderie, and many of us have kept in touch.

At the Celebrating Libraries 2013 Dinner, dancing with the Temasek Polytechnic Library's librarians (on-stage)

To summarise the LAS in six words, we embody pride in our profession. Libraries are a close-knit community worldwide, including Singapore. I would like to see more networking, collaboration, and engagement in the future! We should excite the interest of all members, stand tall that we have much to offer in this digital world, and believe in our profession and ourselves. For future Presidents, do take on the leadership role and be committed to it. I can assure you that it will be a valuable and enriching experience that you will enjoy.

Gene Tan

(2011–2013)*

I joined the association rather late in my library career—more than a decade after I became a Librarian. The Library Association of Singapore (LAS) felt like a rarefied place to me with powerful librarians from libraries outside the National Library Board (NLB) system I was used to. Maybe I wanted to get closer to all these names that I have always heard of as a rookie librarian, and in the process, make something of myself. Even from day one, I had the strange feeling that I was always part of it. I think that is the magic of the librarians' community. No one is ever a stranger.

Someone who left a deep impression on me was Ms Sylvia Yap, the University Librarian from National University of Singapore (NUS). She is such a formidable character. I remember telling her that I was quite terrified of her. Somehow that motivated me to want to do better. When she eventually complimented me on my work, it felt like my most fearsome aunt had validated me in our yearly Chinese New Year meet-ups!

With Tan Pin Pin, Sunita Kaur, Yeow Kai Chai, Goh Lih Shiun and Kenny Leck at the 2012 Librarians for Tomorrow Conference

When I ran for President, my vision was to have debates and discourse in the community—to challenge the thinking that we were a sunset industry.

One of my best memories was when I invited representatives from Facebook (Ms Sunita Kaur), Google (Mr Goh Lih Shiun), as well as independent bookseller Mr Kenny Leck of Books Actually, filmmaker Ms Tan Pin Pin, and Straits Times journalist Mr Yeow Kai Chai for a panel to open the inaugural Librarians for Tomorrow conference in 2012. It was exhilarating to hear support and perspectives from such a diverse group and to have them laugh at silly things together with an auditorium full of librarians.

I really enjoyed meeting librarians from all over the world as President. For instance, our trip to Malacca in our joint LAS-PPM Conference in March 2012 was indeed a moving reunion of two pioneering associations.

With Sunita Kaur, Yeow Kai Chai and Kenny Leck at the 2012 Librarians for Tomorrow Conference

Dancing at the conference dinner with our PPM colleague in Malacca

To future Presidents—keep abreast of trends outside the industry and then work hard to make sure that they do not even become threats to our community. We have to master them.

“Kindness, Solidarity, and Courage” pretty much sums up the essence of the association. I hope to see an association that continues to be one that is kind to all; people new to the community, people outside the community, and above all, people who have served all their lives in it and are now in the twilight of their lives.

Maimunah binti Kadir

*President, Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia
(2013-2014)*

I became a member of Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (PPM) in 1994. My boss at the time, Ms Norsham Muslim, who was then Deputy Chief Librarian of Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM) Library, asked me to represent UKM in PPM's Standing Committee on Academic Libraries. As a new member representing UKM in the standing committee, I felt very welcomed by then Chair, Dato' Dr Zaiton Osman.

As a young librarian, I was inspired by Dato' Dr Zaiton's professionalism and our committee enjoyed the various activities that we organised. I fondly remember the first Internet training that we organised. I had volunteered to hold the training at UKM's computer lab and invited the then Director of the Computer Centre to conduct the course. The Internet was very new and I remember dialling up to United States to login. The computer lab consisted of workstations that were very bulky with crawling access speeds. However, being the first Internet course organised by PPM, it was considered a success. Dato' Dr Zaiton was a mentor to me and inspired me to be active in PPM under her leadership.

My term as a Council member started in 2001. The then President was Dato' Zawiyah Baba who was also the Director-General of the National Library at the time. Another who left a deep impression on me was the late Associate Professor Dr Mohd Sharif Mohd Saad. He was so passionate about his work. He was Vice-President II then and we collaborated well as he was a real team player. He had asked me to be the Secretary of the bidding committee to host IFLA WLIC in 2011 and 2013. He was very committed to bring IFLA WLIC to Kuala Lumpur because he had the vision that it will be beneficial to not only PPM and the library profession, but to Malaysia. When we finally won the bid to host IFLA WLIC 2018, I could not help but think of how happy Dr Sharif would have been with this result, had he still been around.

Dr Sharif passed away suddenly on 9 December 2013. I still remember how shocked I was when I received the news from one of the Council members. I thought it was a bad joke. I was in my office when it was confirmed that we had lost our President. I started crying and could not concentrate at work that day. I was then Vice-President I and we had worked so closely. We would call each other after office hours to discuss matters regarding PPM. It was just a couple of days since he called to ask me to run for President as his second term was ending soon. He had expressed his support for me and wanted me to promise that I will stand for election. He was very persistent about it so I had to agree to his suggestion. It took me a week to overcome my grief of losing not only a dear friend but also a dedicated President. I had to take over the task of President immediately and continue to lead PPM as we had many activities to finish before the upcoming election in March/April 2014. My immediate task was to organise a special prayer for our late President at PPM's office a week after his passing. May he be rewarded in his hereafter for all the good deeds he had done for PPM.

As President, I had to ensure PPM's activities were carried out. The late President had pledged two high-level activities. The first was to host the IFLA-RSCAO meeting in Kuala Lumpur. The second was to publish a book Eseiesei Memperingati Shahar Banun Jaafar dan Shahaneem Hanoum Dadameah: Cabaran Pembangunan Perpustakaan (Essays in memory of Shahar Banun Jaafar and Shahaneem Hanoum Dadameah: Challenges and development of libraries). Preparations to host IFLA-RSCAO went ahead and we had the meeting at the PETRONAS Petroleum Resource Centre from 17 to 18 February 2014, which was followed by the International Seminar on Library Consortia and Community Engagement on 19 February 2014 at Perdana Leadership Foundation.

The book was a compilation of articles in honour of the two late Presidents. Dato' Zawiyah Baba was appointed as Chair of the publication and we published and launched it in time for the Annual General Meeting (AGM) on 14 April 2014. It was deemed a success and became my best memory. We had Tan Sri Dato' Seri Utama Dr Arshad Ayub as the keynote speaker and to officiate the AGM. At the AGM, we also launched the book Garis Panduan Lawatan Amalan Terbaik Perpustakaan oleh Jawatankuasa Tetap Perpustakaan Khusus (Guidelines on Library Visits Best Practices by the Special Libraries Committee).

As my tenure was short (a few months) I was overwhelmed by the support given to me when I had to carry out the duties of the President when he passed away so suddenly. This enabled me to carry out activities successfully and have the AGM in 2014 to elect a new President and Council members. As the Immediate Past President, I was still on the Council and was able contribute to the new President and its new Council members.

Later, I took on the role of Secretary of the National Committee (NC) to host the 84th IFLA WLIC from 24 to 30 August 2018 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, which I enjoyed. This was my favourite time in my profession. Although it was a lot of hard work, I enjoyed the teamwork of the NC without which it would have been impossible to function as Secretary. The experience enriched my knowledge of the high standard set by IFLA in ensuring a successful congress. I developed a close working relationship with IFLA and K.I.T. staff and to this day, they have become my friends. It was also such an honour to get to know then IFLA President, Ms Glòria Pérez-Salmerón, and IFLA's Secretary General, Mr Gerald Leitner, while organising WLIC 2018. It is truly one of the most unforgettable experiences for me to this day.

Sadly, my mother passed away on 28 August 2018. I was at the NC room when my husband called to inform me that my mother had passed away at 11.00 am. I rushed home immediately. I was glad the main event such as the IFLA's Official Reception, the Opening Session, and the Cultural Evening was over by then. Even though I could not bring myself to be at the Convention Centre for the rest of the Congress due to my grief, I was pleased that everything had been executed well due to the support and teamwork of our NC members and especially the dedication of our Chair, Dato' Nafisah Ahmad and Co-Chair Dato' Dr Zaiton Osman who helped ensure that everything was smooth sailing. IFLA WLIC will always hold dear in my heart because of its association with my mother's passing during WLIC 2018.

The essence of PPM is professionalism, volunteerism, and teamwork. Future Presidents need to bring together all professional librarians to be PPM members under one umbrella and strive towards making the profession legally recognised in the country. I have faith that today's young librarians are dynamic and will aspire to bring up the status of PPM as a professional body in the country and on par with other professions in the near future.

Lee Cheng Ean

(2013-2015)*

I first joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 1982 when I joined National University of Singapore (NUS) as a trainee librarian. I was inducted to LAS by a colleague. I felt that if I am joining the library profession, I would need to be a member to learn about the profession and how other libraries function.

As a newbie that first year, I recall attending the Annual General Meeting (AGM) and also a dinner by the poolside at one of the hotels. It was quite an experience for me as I was a kampung girl and had not been to a hotel before. My senior took my colleagues and me under her wing and took good care of us during that event.

I was very much impressed with Miss Wee Joo Gim who was the President of LAS from 1980 to 1982. Years later, I had the good fortune to work closely with Miss Wee at NUS. Since attending my first meeting, I made it a point to attend the LAS AGMs and major events to catch up with fellow librarians and to enjoy the networking.

Wee Joo Gim receiving the LAS Lifetime Contribution Award 2014 at the LAS 60th anniversary celebration on 18 April 2015

Immediately after I completed my Master of Library & Information Studies degree from the Loughborough University of Technology in 1984, I was immediately roped in to join the LAS Council. I took on the role of Assistant Honorary Secretary and was entrusted with membership administration. I recall updating members' information and storing it in a floppy disk. It was a painful process. I learnt a lot from Mr Ramachandran who was the President then. After that stint, I continued as a member and assisted in organising a number of major events, such as the Golden Jubilee in 2005, and Libraries for Tomorrow conference in 2014.

My desire to work with fellow librarians locally and abroad as well as to influence the library profession and how we can add value to the community we serve motivated me to run for President.

When I took over the role of LAS President from May 2013, my aim was to increase the membership of LAS and to provide opportunities for members' professional development so as to enhance the status and role of library professionals in Singapore. My key focus was for members to develop themselves through attending talks, seminars, and enriching visits. As our roles are constantly evolving due to emerging technologies, learning behaviours, as well as publishing and business models, it is imperative that members keep learning to stay relevant and ahead of challenges.

The most memorable event was definitely the night of Presidents—Celebrating Librarians: LAS Awards & Book Launch. I was Vice-President from 2012 to 2013 working alongside Mr Gene Tan who is such a joy to work with. Together we organised the grand event graced by the former President of Singapore, Dr Tony Tan Keng Yam, when I was the LAS President from 2013 to 2015. Not only did we have the privilege of having the then President of Singapore as Guest of Honour to present the LAS awards and launch the commemorative book, In 99 Words: Stories Librarians Tell, but we also had the company of the President of IFLA, Dr Ingrid Parent and President-Elect Ms Sinikka Sipilä.

Celebrating Librarians on 18 Aug 2013*

During my term, we organised two “librarians give-back” activities. One was to the Cerebral Palsy Alliance Singapore (CPAS) and another to the Lighthouse School where members volunteered their time to work with those less fortunate. Love Your Librarian Day on a boat cruise was also another memorable fun-filled event.

How active the association is depends on the Council and members. You need the people to drive programmes and push for development. Active Council members and volunteers make things happen.

I always enjoyed the networking lunches after each AGM. When we get together, there is always plenty of food, chatter, and laughter. The library community is a very small one in Singapore. The more we get together, the more friends we make, hence making it easier for us to collaborate whenever we need to. The bond that we build over the years bring us closer to each other.

The essence of the association would be "enduring (and yet to) reach full potential."

This is a voluntary role which requires time and commitment. Be passionate and ready to serve in order to bring the community together to raise the profile of librarians and the work we do.

I hope to see active participation from the younger librarians to drive transformation. Commitment from the Library Directors to encourage librarians to be more collaborative. Be the voice for the community to bring librarians from national, public, academic, and special libraries together to advocate barrier-free access to information. We need to work together to support Singapore in building a society that is built on lifelong learning with strong information literacy and research skills.

Dr Nor Edzan binti Che Nasir

*President, Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia
(2014-2016)*

In 1983, I reported for duty at the Universiti Sains Malaysia Library as an Administrative Officer. Upon obtaining my library qualifications, my post was changed to Librarian in 1986. At the time, I had never heard of Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (PPM). In 1991, I reported for duty as a Librarian at the University of Malaya Library. Though I was unfamiliar with PPM, I was a member of the Law Librarian Group then. It was much later on in my career that I found out that the Group was part of PPM, hence becoming my first introduction to PPM. I registered as a Professional Member in 1996 and in 2018, became a Life Member.

Throughout the years, I joined various PPM committees and finally stood for election as a Council member in 2005 and 2008, Vice-President II in 2011, and finally, as President in 2014. The decision to run for President was definitely not impulsive. I was sure of my commitment to PPM and how I could contribute to PPM in my capacity as President. My predecessor was the late Dr Mohd. Sharif Mohd. Saad and his commitment to PPM was unprecedented. When I ran for President, I felt that I had to continue the work of the past Presidents of PPM and continue to lead the profession into the future.

Sumbang Saran held in Kuching in 2016

I held office from 2014 to 2016 and led the Association to the best of my ability. Our main challenge was how to recruit new members. We decided to organise roadshows to all our chapters – North, South, East, Sabah, and Sarawak. Known as Sumbang Saran PPM, it was held in all our chapters except for the South. I attended all the Sumbang Saran and was able to meet our members and hear their views about PPM. There were many takeaways from these roadshows. At the 2015 Annual General Meeting (AGM), we proposed to adopt 6 June to be Malaysia's Librarians' Day and this was well received by our members. From 2015 to 2020, librarians in Malaysia organised various events to mark our day. However, 2020 would be a memorable one for me because we were able to include the Minister for Tourism, Arts, and Culture on our special day.

In 2015, we renewed our relationship with the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) by having our first PPM-LAS Joint Meeting in April 2015. We also celebrated PPM's 60th anniversary – Celebrating PPM's Diamond Jubilee (1955-2015): 60 Years of Leadership and Commitment Towards

Sumbang Saran held in Kota Kinabalu in 2016

Librarianship in Malaysia. We held a workshop, a conference, and an anniversary dinner. These events held during my presidency will forever hold a special meaning to me. Apart from that, I truly treasure the camaraderie of all the Council members who were with me during my various terms of office. They were a constant source of inspiration and were always there for me.

My advice to future Presidents of PPM is to keep encouraging members to participate in PPM's activities. All activities must address the members' needs. There is also a need to engage with our stakeholders and members, as that is key to the success of any association. The future of PPM not only lies in the hands of its Council members but most importantly, its members. All librarians and libraries in Malaysia should be members of PPM. All PPM members should be actively involved with PPM. Young librarians should be at the forefront while being mentored by senior members to bring PPM to greater heights. The essence of PPM can be summarised as LEADING THE PROFESSION.

Judy Ng

*President, Library Association of Singapore
(2015-2017)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) as a member soon after I joined the National Library around the mid-1980s. I subsequently signed up for a life membership.

I was new to the profession when I joined the LAS, and wanted to know what being a librarian entailed. I undertook the Diploma in Library Science organised by LAS and this was the start of getting qualified as a library professional.

During my term with the council, Mr Chan Thye Seng and Ms Sylvia Yap left deep impressions on me. Mr Chan was very passionate in international librarianship and often related to my colleagues and me about his experience in attending CONSAL, COMLA, and IFLA. Ms Yap was the President of LAS when I held the position of Vice-President. I could sense the passion of Ms Yap as President of LAS.

With the 2018 APLIC Organising Committee

When I ran for President, I wanted to play a part in contributing back to the profession. Ex-Presidents, Mr Gene Tan and Mrs Lee Cheng Ean were also instrumental in recommending me to run. I hoped to strike collaborations with other library associations to bring about greater benefits to members and raise the profile of LAS on the international stage.

As a result, we hosted a few IFLA events in Singapore and LAS represented our Singapore libraries in the IFLA Global Vision Regional Workshop in June 2017 organised by IFLA Headquarters. LAS also hosted librarians from other countries' library associations. I had a very dedicated team of Council members.

A significant development and one of my best memories was when the MOU between three Asia-Pacific associations, LIANZA, LAS, and ALIA was signed on 12 October 2016 to collaborate and promote the library and information sector across the three countries and represent the sector's work at an international level (IFLA). This was done in a very short timeframe. Through the collaboration, the first Asia Pacific Library & Information Conference (APLIC) jointly organised with ALIA and LIANZA, and was held in Gold Coast, Australia from 30 July to 3 August 2018.

With emphasis on training and development, the Training and Development Committee organised relevant activities. The first Speed Mentoring Session (think “speed dating” but with senior/junior librarians on opposite sides) for LAS members was conducted in June 2018. Other interesting firsts included the first nature walk and the first webinar pioneered by the committee. The inaugural LAS webinar was held on 30 November 2018 with a total of 67 attendees. Through a collaboration with the Chinese American Librarians Association, this webinar attracted 12 overseas librarians.

The Council also organised the Libraries for Tomorrow Conference 2016 with the theme of Smart Libraries for Tomorrow: Disrupt and Innovate, which was held on 20 September 2016 and attended by 320 librarians and information professionals.

What I enjoyed while in LAS was the networking with librarians from other institutions. Through my participation in LAS, I got to know many fellow librarians and the connections have made sharing and collaboration possible amongst libraries in Singapore. LAS to me, is a lean, collaborative, and steadfast association.

Giving the welcome speech at the Libraries for Tomorrow Conference 2016

To future Presidents—be passionate and always have the interest of members in mind. To nurture a good team of young Council members who can continue to serve the LAS even after their term is up. I hope to see LAS take the lead in the professional development of its members and be recognised as the voice of the profession.

Tan Chui Peng

(2019-2021)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) 20 years ago and even served a two-year term as treasurer in 2000. Being part of the Council, I had the opportunity to contribute to the profession, network with librarians from various libraries—academic libraries, special libraries, public libraries, and the National Library, giving me a better understanding of the library development in Singapore as a whole.

During my term, we faced an unexpected situation. In 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, there was a remarkable shift towards digital usage with all the association activities held virtually. This induced the need for the Association’s programme committee to learn and explore new tools to deliver programmes to members effectively. During this period, we held a few virtual professional sharing sessions and even explored member engagement events like the virtual escape room.

Library operations have also taken on new dimensions as we faced the need to engage library stakeholders through various channels, such as live chats, virtual video programmes, and livestreams. As always, it is essential for librarians to learn new digital skills in order to develop digital content of different formats for its users.

Overall, it has been an extraordinary experience for the profession as libraries push the boundaries to deliver services in a virtual world.

Datu Dr Rashidah Bolhassan

*President, Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia
(2020-2022)*

I became acquainted with the Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (PPM) during my library school studies at the Mara Institute of Technology from 1981 to 1984. During that period, PPM actively promoted its initiatives, recruited members, and recognised exceptional library school students through various awards. In 1993, upon assuming the position of City Librarian for Kuching North City Hall in Sarawak, I reached out to the late Dr Shariff, a member of the PPM Council, to discuss the establishment of a PPM chapter in Sarawak. I was later appointed as one of the inaugural pro-tem committee members, and have since maintained active involvement in PPM and its related activities, particularly regarding the Sarawak chapter.

The establishment of the Sarawak chapter necessitated the advocacy for the inclusion of professional librarians from across Sarawak as PPM members, along with the encouragement of their active participation in various initiatives. Given the expansive nature of Sarawak and the absence of teleconferencing technology in the past, travel served as the primary means for engaging with and fostering connections among prospective members. Fortunately, email began to emerge as a significant communication method in the early 1990s, which greatly facilitated communication efforts then.

During my attendance at the IFLA conference in Glasgow in 2002, I observed that public library services in Malaysia were not adequately represented, with most presentations focused on Malaysian academic libraries. Consequently, upon assuming the role of Chair of the Council of State Library Directors in Malaysia (2014-2020), I adopted the principle of internationalising the initiatives and innovations conducted by the various State Libraries, which had not received due recognition. Since 2014, the State Libraries have actively participated and presented papers and posters at IFLA conferences. This involvement significantly contributed to Malaysia's visibility and success in hosting the IFLA WLIC 2018 in Kuala Lumpur.

As the Chair of the Council of State Library Directors in Malaysia, I was entrusted with the leadership of PPM's sub-committee focused on Public Library services. This position provided me with the invaluable opportunity to engage with the PPM Council. Throughout this experience, I greatly benefited from the collective support, guidance and mentorship of my fellow Council members, which has played a significant role in advancing my professional development.

In 2019, the immediate past President, Dato' Nafisah, along with former President, Dr Edzan, encouraged me to submit my candidacy for the Presidential election for the 2020-2022 term. My manifesto for the election was:

- PPM to provide pragmatic support for Malaysian's librarians and related professionals;
- Immersing librarians as advocates for better communities, towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) 2030 through PPM's continuous professional development programmes;
- PPM to strengthen and align strategic promotion and marketing, for itself and its members;
- PPM to further strengthen itself as the 'G-Force' to accelerate international connectivity, contribute as an international partner and player, and to strategise international recognition;
- PPM as an institution for continuous learning, research and publisher for the field of knowledge management, and library and information studies.

During my tenure as President from 2020 to 2022, we actively promoted the involvement of Malaysian librarians in various committees of IFLA. As a result of these efforts, there has been a notable increase in interest among librarians to seek nominations for participation in IFLA committees. I have also continued to actively advocate for Malaysian librarians to engage in volunteer opportunities and to participate on international platforms. The aim is to highlight Malaysia's library initiatives and to provide librarians with opportunities to network, contribute, and collaborate with the global professional community.

My best memory during my presidency was when Christine Mackenzie, IFLA President (2019-2021), addressed PPM at the AGM. She emphasised that we were navigating unprecedented times and must rise above the challenges we face. This perspective served as a catalyst for fostering creativity and embracing innovative approaches to leadership within the association, adapting to what was described as the new normal – an experience that deviated significantly from the conventional understanding of normalcy.

My tenure, amidst the COVID-19 pandemic, presented a unique opportunity for enhanced engagement among Council members primarily through online meetings. The frequency of these meetings improved significantly, as did attendance by Council members, who previously faced challenges related to travel to meeting locations. During this period, I had the opportunity to present approximately 15 research papers at a variety of virtual library conferences, seminars and workshops. The library community in Malaysia also actively organised a range of seminars and conferences, the majority of which were conducted virtually. This highlighted the adaptability of our field in leveraging technology for knowledge dissemination during challenging times.

I believe that advancing knowledge through ongoing professional development, leveraging insights from library colleagues both locally and globally, and fostering collaborative initiatives are essential for enhancing our expertise in the field. In three words – Agile, Innovative, Empowerment, summarise the essence of our association.

To future presidents, I hope they lead and embody the association's mission, engage with fellow presidents and leaders within the industry, locally and globally, embrace the challenge of driving transformative change, and act with purpose. For the association of the future, I hope PPM gains recognition as a legitimate professional association.

Dr Sadie-Jane Huff

(2021-2023)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 2015 upon hearing that I was going to take over as the new Head Librarian at the Singapore Institute of Management (SIM). I wanted to learn more about the library world and the best way to do so is to be part of the association and learn from my fellow colleagues. Most members were welcoming and so helpful knowing that this was a new industry for me. I appreciate the friendships that I have made as well as the opportunities that I had even being a newbie member at the time. I enjoyed attending the talks, signing up for the Executive Library Management Programme (ELMP), and of course, attending the conferences too. Seeing the further evolution of ELMP was also heartening. I made some good friends during that course as well as with the Day in a Life programme. I hope that doesn't go away.

As a library newbie attending the ABLD-EBSLG-APBSLG conference and meeting held at Singapore Management University in 2016

When I ran for President, it wasn't my first role as a President of an association to be honest. Given that I wanted to give back to a community that has either welcomed me with open arms or not, when then President Samantha invited me to be part of the new Council as Vice-President, I figured why not? In most cases, unless it is contested, it means that I will rise the ranks and become the next President two years later, which was what happened. Being the President allowed me to prove my worth, do my best for a community I had grown to appreciate, and to show the naysayers that I am committed to do my best for the library community. I wanted to get the most out of the presidency and to look into things like mental health issues for example – this is why I either spoke at various international seminars or wrote opinion pieces about it. Given that it was a trying period i.e. COVID-19, mental health was even more pertinent than ever.

It was a tough term for sure as I was the COVID-19 President. So as much as I wanted to hold as many activities as possible (which was truly difficult given all the forever changing restrictions), I was proud to steer the big-ticket items like the Conference, which was held online for the first time, and was done together with PPM. Definitely memorable to say the least and I remember it fondly, in fact, I am very proud of what the team did collectively. Thank you to the PPM and LAS conference teams! The LAS-PPM conference is a wonderful memory as seeing librarians come together, having overseas attendees, and everyone just wholeheartedly learning from each other, always makes my heart smile.

First ever online LAS-PPM Conference held in 2021 during the COVID-19 pandemic

One thing that I managed to do quite often was speak about LAS. Being able to share our viewpoint of anything to do with books on CNA938's morning show live kept me on my toes as well. I loved being able to talk about LAS and books – so important to let people know that we, i.e. LAS, exists! It felt good to be able to inform or remind people about the existence of the association as many didn't seem to know that we existed. This happened quite a few times during my presidency. Other good memories I had were the various online panels and international platforms that I was a part of as a representative of LAS, as it introduced me to other librarians around the world.

When the COVID-19 gathering restrictions were lifted, I was unfortunately unwell so I remember doing quite a few recordings with regards to my speeches for events. I do wish that I was able to attend the few face-to-face ones we had. Honestly, there were times that I wished I wasn't President during COVID-19. Then again, I may not have had the experiences that I had otherwise. C'est La Vie!

My time in the Council was made up of people who were willing to go the extra mile in terms of doing things for the members. The few people who stood out for me were Edward, Samantha, Rajen, Gene, Leng Foong, and Rindra as they were always supportive and always happy to share their viewpoints which I appreciated given that they are veterans in the field. I honestly wish there were more activities but as I mentioned, it was COVID-19 so we did as much as we could.

*Representing LAS as President at the IFLA webinar
"Public Libraries: Responding in Times of Crisis" in 2021*

As cheesy as it is, being humble enough to always want to learn from each other makes this an association that will always be close to my heart. Collab | Camaraderie | Commune #iykyk is the essence of the association to me.

My advice to the future presidents of the library association would be "Be true to yourself, envision your mission, and focus on your end game". I hope that people never forget the importance of this association and that we grow in numbers so big and have so many volunteers that we will never have to worry about not having enough manpower for the Council.

Dr Ghazali Mohamed Fadzil

(2022-2026)*

From the very beginning, my path seemed destined for the world of libraries and information. It was not merely a career but a calling – one that has guided me through decades of passion, dedication, and unwavering belief in the transformative power of libraries. My journey has been marked by a deep commitment to the profession, the joy of nurturing young talent, and an enduring vision to elevate the role of libraries in society.

I became a member of Persatuan Pustakawan Malaysia (PPM) in 2004, but my involvement with the association began much earlier. I had participated in numerous PPM activities, drawn by a desire to contribute and learn. Becoming a member was a natural progression. It was my way of stepping further into a community that valued growth, collaboration, and professional excellence.

My experience in corporate libraries offered me unique insights into the profession. It broadened my perspective and deepened my resolve to contribute meaningfully to PPM. The sense of belonging I felt within the organisation was a powerful motivator. It drove me to share my experiences, knowing that my contributions were valued and had an impact.

Work commitments limited my involvement until I retired in 2015. However, retirement only marked a new chapter. In 2016, I was elected as a PPM Council Member, tasked with the Professional Development portfolio. This role aligned perfectly with my passion for mentorship and talent development. It provided opportunities to interact with emerging librarians, young talents, helping to shape the future of our profession.

In 2022, I was honoured to be elected as the President of PPM. This role was not just a title but a responsibility – a chance to lead, serve, and contribute on a larger scale. Now, in my second term as President, my mission is clear: to drive library development across the entire value chain, from Perpustakaan Desa to dynamic corporate libraries. I believe that PPM's presence and collaboration among all library sectors is essential to ensuring our continued relevance and innovation.

A significant focus of my presidency has been the professional development of librarians. Our world is evolving rapidly, and librarians must be equipped with leadership, strategic thinking, communication, and competitive intelligence skills. Through the PPM Leadership Development programme, we are building a new generation of leaders who are prepared to innovate and inspire.

Our strategy is we take a developmental approach in everything we do. When organising events and activities, such as our Annual Malaysian Library Conference, we not only invite and coach young talents to present papers but also involve them in the event's organisation, with mentoring and coaching as key components. Besides our annual conference, each PPM committee also runs its own yearly events and activities.

Open Science has been a focus for academic libraries for some time, and we have been at the forefront of initiatives in this area – particularly in establishing librarians as research data managers within our university. To further expand this role, we introduced Citizen Science in 2022 as a new opportunity for our librarians and libraries. In fact, we recently completed the first phase of our nationwide Citizen Science In Action Programme series in February 2025. We look forward to continuing and expanding these efforts in the future.

One of our greatest challenges is the perception of the public about our roles as a librarian and library. The best way to mitigate this perception is through our mindset change and continuous leadership development.

One of my proudest achievements is the Young Librarians Camp, where I serve as a subject matter expert. Watching young talents grow – seeing them present on global stages, contribute as panellists, hold positions in IFLA committees, and consult on significant projects – has been incredibly rewarding.

Leading PPM also involves adapting our organisation to modern demands. We championed a strategic, business-like approach, emphasising strategic communication, research and development, and competitive intelligence. It is vital that libraries remain proactive and evolve into indispensable knowledge hubs.

Looking ahead, our vision is bold yet clear. We aim to:

- Strengthen librarian staffing structures across all sectors through high-quality human capital development;
- Make PPM one of the main agents in community development creating valuable social and economic impacts on the society;
- Develop competencies through an integrated competency model;
- Create new career opportunities for library science graduates;
- Revitalise the reading culture by addressing fundamental challenges.

To me, PPM embodies Commitment, Passion, and Impact. As President, I advocate for a mindset change among Malaysian librarians to embrace challenges as opportunities. I am dedicated to visiting libraries nationwide, engaging directly with the people and places that form the backbone of our profession.

On the global stage, our agenda includes strengthening international connections while continuously promoting professional and leadership development. My journey in the library and information world is far from over. With renewed focus and commitment, I strive to ensure that libraries remain vibrant, valuable, and visionary – true beacons of knowledge in our evolving world.

For me, every step taken, every library visited, and every young talent mentored is a testament to a lifelong passion. I am proud of the path I have walked and excited about the roads yet to be travelled. Together, with the library community, we continue to create value and inspire generations to come.

Soh Lin Li

(2023-2025)*

I joined the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) in 2009, motivated by the camaraderie I experienced while working closely with the LAS team during the 2008 Istana Reception. As part of the National Library Board (NLB) team, I partnered with LAS to organise this historic event, where the President of Singapore would honour and celebrate librarians for the first time. It was a high-stakes event with tight security and limited resources due to the venue, but the pride and joy of the librarians made me want to be part of this community. So, I joined the circle of friends and leaders I had admired.

It was Mr Idris Surattee who first encouraged me to become a librarian. While working together at Singapore Press Holdings (SPH), I spent a lot of time in the SPH library researching with microfilms and photographs. He suggested I join NLB, which was expanding in 2000 and had the largest network of libraries in Singapore. I took his advice, and there has been no turning back since. As a young newcomer to the library world, I quickly realised there are many types of libraries and roles for librarians each requiring unique skills. Joining LAS broadened my perspective far beyond what I had experienced at NLB and SPH, and I found this diversity fascinating.

When I first joined LAS, we were in the midst of going digital. I had the honour of converting membership data from 3.5" floppy disks to Excel spreadsheets, which 12 years later, were still in use before they were finally transitioned online with the new LAS membership system. While helping with the Programmes Committee, I also had the chance to organise fun events like a Zhenghe Chinese junk boat trip around Singapore for our members. It was a fantastic experience to connect with librarians from all over the country, sharing simple joys like reading a good book, which helped to bring us closer together.

Libraries have long been pillars of knowledge, learning and community engagement. While the role of libraries is rapidly changing, we must adapt to new challenges and opportunities while staying true to our core mission of fostering learning and growth. During my presidency, I am proud that our Council delivered the national competency framework for information professionals and successfully hosted the Libraries for Tomorrow 2024 event, LAS's bi-annual conference, where tech giants came together to offer insightful sessions. My hope is that these initiatives help future librarians find the right balance between innovation and tradition.

I look forward to seeing LAS thrive for many more decades to come.

BIOGRAPHIES

Leonard M. Harrod

Chairman, Malayan Library Group (1955)

Leonard Montague Harrod (1905-1984) was the President of the Malayan Library Group in 1955. He was appointed Librarian of the Raffles Library on 8 September 1954, and served as its director from January 1955 to December 1959. Harrod contributed greatly to the development of the library system and the planning and progress of the Raffles Library. During his career, he introduced the Browne System of issuing books and the usage of a combined receipt for subscriptions and deposits. Among his other achievements, Harrod was key in the promotion of local languages in the library's collection, initiated a comprehensive children's collection and publicised the library's facilities.

Ernest H. Clark

Chairman, Malayan Library Group (1955-1956)

Ernest Hayden Clark (1918-1971) was the Librarian at the University of Malaya, Singapore from 1952 to 1960, and served as the Chairman of the Malayan Library Group from 1955 to 1956. Born in Melbourne, Australia in 1918, Clark began his career at the University of Melbourne Library in 1936. Clark's career at the University of Malaya saw the opening of a new million-dollar air-conditioned library in 1953, reported in the press to be one of the "most up-to-date libraries in South-East Asia" at that time. Clark went on several overseas library visits in 1955, having been awarded travel grants by the Carnegie Corporation and the Asia Foundation. During his travels, he studied library spaces, administration and microfilm services in the United States and visited libraries across the globe such as in Bangkok, Rome, Frankfurt, and London. In 1958, Clark oversaw the reconfiguration of the University's library floor space and seating capacity to accommodate almost double the number of users. He returned to his hometown, Melbourne, to continue his work as a Librarian at Monash University in 1960, after his tenure at the University of Malaya.

P. G. M. G. Mahindasa

Chairman, Malayan Library Group (1956-1957)

Pilane Godokandegai Michael George Mahindasa (1899-1966) was educated at Saint Francis Institution, Malacca and had joined the school as a teacher in 1916 where he remained in service for a large part of his career. He was a Committee Member of the Malacca Library (later renamed Henry Gurney Memorial Library) from 1938 to 1940. After World War II, he continued to be involved in the library as its Secretary and Treasurer for several years. When the Malayan Library Group was set up in 1955, he was elected a member of the group's inaugural committee, and later, served as its Vice-Chairman and Chairman for 1956 and 1957 respectively. He was also involved in various public organisations, including the Malacca Rotary Club, made a Justice of Peace in 1946, and was awarded the Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire (MBE) in 1950.

Jean M. Waller

Chairman, Malayan Library Group (1957-1958)

Jean Mary Waller (1914-1999) was the President of the Malayan Library Group from 1957 to 1958. Waller was one of the qualified expatriate librarians that the government brought in to Singapore in the 1950s and was instrumental in helping to mould the library profession in Singapore. She joined the then University of Malaya in 1953, where she subsequently served as the Deputy Chief Librarian, and then as its Chief Librarian. When Singapore became a self-ruling republic, she became Chief Librarian at what was eventually called the University of Singapore from 1960 to 1966. In 1966, she returned to Australia, where she became Deputy Librarian at the Australian National University, and served as its Chief Librarian from 1973 to 1974. She passed away in 1999 in Melbourne.

Hedwig Anuar

President, Library Association of Singapore (1958-1961; 1963-1965)

Starting out as a Library Assistant in 1952, Hedwig Anuar (1928-) built a lasting legacy that saw the library membership grow from 43,000 to more than 330,000 across nine libraries as the first Singaporean Director of the National Library (NL), a position that she held from 1965 until her retirement in 1988. Together with the University of Malaya librarians, she spearheaded the formation of the Library Association of Singapore's (LAS) precursor, the Malayan Library Group (MLG), at a time when there were very few homegrown career librarians. Their idea of forming a library association covering both Malaya and Singapore in 1954 won over close to 50 like-minded librarians and individuals from Singapore and Malaya. The MLG was formally registered in 1955 and Anuar took on various leadership roles within LAS before devoting her attention to establish the then-fledgling National Book Development Council of Singapore. As the NL director, she ignited a nationwide interest in reading with the 'Read

More Books' campaign in the late 1950s, and introduced the popular mobile library service in 1960, which brought the library to 35 schools in rural districts. The dame of Singapore's library network moulded the nation's library system from infancy and encouraged its early computerisation efforts, laying a firm foundation for our libraries to take flight in this age of digitalisation.

Wilfred J. Plumbe

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu (1960-1961)

Wilfred John Plumbe (1915-2008) was an expatriate Librarian at the University of Malaya and a founding member of the Malayan Library Group in the 1950s. Prior to 1956, he was the Assistant Librarian at the University of Malaya in Singapore, before being assigned to Nigeria. Plumbe returned to Malaya in 1959, taking up the post of Librarian, University of Malaya, Kuala Lumpur. In 1960, he became President of the then Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu (Library Association of the Federation of Malaya), but left again for Nigeria in 1962. Plumbe was a strong advocate for establishing public libraries in various parts of Malaya, having written articles about the lack of libraries in Malaya in the newspapers and MLG newsletter. He was also a poet and artist, having contributed to the Singapore Art Society as well. At one point, he served as Editor of the magazine Singapore Artists.

Wang-Chen Hsiu Chin

President, Library Association of Singapore (1961-1963; 1965-1966; 1969-1970)

Wang-Chen Hsiu Chin (1922-1983) served several terms as President of the Library Association of Singapore. She was a law graduate from the National Chung Cheng University in China, before obtaining two master's degrees in political science as well as in librarianship from the University of Washington in 1951 and 1952 respectively. She returned to Singapore in 1955 to join the then University of Singapore as a Library Assistant, and was a University Librarian from 1967 until her retirement in 1978. In addition to expanding the library's collection and services, Wang-Chen was involved in the preliminary planning of the Central Library of the National University of Singapore at Kent Ridge. From 1980-1983, she also helped the Institute of Education reorganise its library.

Charles J. Manuel

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu (1961-1964)

C. J. Manuel was the President of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu for three terms from 1961-1964. Prior to this, he had conducted a survey of library facilities in the Federation of Malaya, which was submitted to the Delhi International Seminar on Development of Public Libraries in Asia in 1955. In 1954, he played a leading role in the setting up of one of the first free public libraries in Malaya known as the Butterworth Free Library, within the premises of St Mark's Secondary School, Butterworth, the school where he was Assistant Headmaster at the time. He later became Headmaster of the school in 1960, as well as Vice-Chairman of the Penang Adult Education Association in 1958.

Syed Ahmad bin Ali

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu/Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1964-1970)

Syed Ahmad bin Ali was the Librarian at the United States Information Service (USIS) Library in Singapore in the early 1950s. In March 1955, he was reassigned to become the Librarian at the USIS Library in Penang. He later became the Chief Librarian of the Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka (Institute of Language and Literature). As a librarian, he travelled overseas, going to the United States in 1951, and even to the National Library of New Zealand in 1969 in order to observe their library facilities and operations. He served a total of six terms as President of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Persekutuan Tanah Melayu and later Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia when it was reconstituted to the latter, from 1964 to 1970.

Khoo Oon Chor

President, Library Association of Singapore (1966-1967)

Khoo Oon Chor served as the President of the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) from 1966-1967, shortly after the independence of Singapore. Prior to that, he was active in the Association as Secretary and committee member. Khoo studied librarianship in New Zealand for a year under the Colombo Plan and returned in 1961, taking on the role as in-charge of the Medical Library, University of Malaya in Singapore. He published several writings during his career as a Librarian at the University of Singapore Medical Library, including a study of medical libraries in Malaysia, and an introduction to the reference and bibliography service in the University of Singapore Medical Library. In 1965, as a member of LAS, he served on the Standing Committee on Special Libraries of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia. Khoo also groomed others in the library fraternity, having been one of the lecturers for librarian training classes. In 1966, he lectured on bibliographical control and service. Under his tenure as LAS President, the Association organised the "Workshop on the Problems of Book Production in Singapore" in 1966. The workshop brought together various stakeholders in the industry for the first time – educators, librarians, publishers, booksellers, printers, authors, and readers. One of the recommendations arising from the workshop was the establishment of a National Book Council in the country.

Rosemary Yeap

President, Library Association of Singapore (1967-1968)

Rosemary Yeap is a pioneer in Singapore's library community. She oversaw the development of libraries on three campuses when she was the Chief Librarian of Singapore Polytechnic from 1961-1988. As a founder, leader, and active member of the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) from 1960-1991, she served LAS not only as President, but as Vice-President, Honorary Secretary, and Council member. She was also a member of numerous committees ranging from library education to library automation. Yeap was awarded the Public Administration Medal in 1995 for her work in the Ministry of Education committees, where she played a key role in influencing library-related government policies.

J. S. Soosai

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1970-1972)

Joseph S. Soosai, was the former Chief Librarian of the Rubber Research Institute of Malaysia, a post he held for 28 years. He was highly involved in regional activities as part of IFLA, and played a leading role in the establishment of the Working Group for Developing Countries when he made a statement during the 1971 IFLA General Conference calling for IFLA to identify and integrate the problems faced by Third World countries into its framework or activities. He subsequently served as the Working Group's first Chairman. Soosai also played a hand in establishing the Regional Development Fund at IFLA in the 1980s to provide financial support for Third World programmes. He served as President of Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia for two terms from 1970-1972.

Lim Hong Too

President, Library Association of Singapore (1970-1972; 1988-1989)

Lim Hong Too (1932-2022) served as President of the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) from 1970-1972 and 1988-1989. Lim started his career in education before switching to librarianship, when he earned a scholarship to Columbia University in New York to study for his master's degree in library science. He became a senior library professional in the National University of Singapore and was later invited to be the Founding University Librarian of the then Nanyang Technological Institute. He introduced the use of computers into the library and the Nanyang Technological University (NTU) Library became the first major university library in Singapore to have full automation right from the start. Lim retired from NTU in 1995 and professionally as a librarian in 1999.

D. E. K. Wijasuriya

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1972-1974; 1975-1976)

Donald Earlian Kingsley Wijasuriya (1934-) was the Director-General of the Perpustakaan Negara Malaysia (National Library of Malaysia) from 1983-1989. Prior to this, he was the Deputy Librarian at the University of Malaya, Kuala Lumpur before being seconded to the National Library in 1972. Following his retirement as Director-General, Dr Wijasuriya became the Managing Director of Library and Information Development Consultants, Kuala Lumpur. He was also a former Member of the Professional Board of IFLA and served as Chairman to the 1992 IFLA Pre-session Seminar Planning Committee which addressed the status and image of librarians. Dr Wijasuriya devoted a lot of time into writing on library and librarian development in Malaysia, having published numerous books and articles on the subject. He received his doctorate in Philosophy in 1980 at the Loughborough University of Technology, also writing about library development for his thesis. He served three terms as President of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia between 1972 and 1976.

Koh Thong Ngee

President, Library Association of Singapore (1973-1975)

Koh Thong Ngee was the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) President from 1973 to 1975, and participated in LAS committees on censorship, constitution review, copyright, library education, library cooperation, and training from 1971 to 1987. He joined the Nanyang University Library service in February 1960 as a graduate assistant in the Chinese Department, and was appointed Head of Acquisitions soon after. He served as the Deputy Librarian after that and became the Librarian in 1973. When the University of Singapore and Nanyang University merged in August 1980, he was absorbed into the National University of Singapore (NUS) Library service and continued as Librarian. In 1983, Koh was concurrently appointed Head of the Chinese Library. In July 1991, he was appointed Acting Chief Librarian of NUS Libraries where he remained until his retirement. During his career, Koh was concerned with the development and welfare of support staff in the NUS Libraries. Improving physical library facilities was another area that he worked on tirelessly.

Syed Salim Agha

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1974-1975)

Syed Salim Agha started out as an Assistant Librarian at the Ipoh Public Library in Perak, and later became its Head Librarian when its Director, Karl Reeh, a U.S. Peace Corps Librarian left for another appointment in June 1966. Prior to heading the library, he had trained with the National Library in Singapore under the supervision of Hedwig Anuar and took the British Library Association examinations. Later on, he became the Chief Librarian of the Universiti Pertanian Malaysia (UPM) where he stayed till 1995. During his time at UPM, Syed Salim served as Vice-President (1990-1994) and later Senior Vice-President (1995-2000) of the International Association of Agricultural Librarians & Documentalists (IAALD) Executive Committee. In 1995, he moved to the International Islamic University Malaysia and was Chief Librarian there till 2007. Syed Salim was presented with the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia's Outstanding Librarian Award in 2001, the same year he was nominated for CONSAL's Outstanding Librarian Award.

Wee Joo Gim

President, Library Association of Singapore (1975-1978; 1980-1982)

Wee Joo Gim is a pioneering Librarian and leader with an illustrious career spanning nearly 40 years. She embarked on her library career at Singapore Polytechnic Library in 1966 and later studied library science at the University of Wisconsin in the United States as a recipient of the Ford Foundation Scholarship. For over a decade, she created and led the Colombo Plan Staff College Library for Technician Education for participants from 26 Colombo Plan countries. As the Deputy Librarian of the National University of Singapore Library System in charge of technical services, she fostered a culture of improvement and innovation which included introducing more IT-based programmes and services. Wee served tirelessly in the Library Association of Singapore (LAS), serving five terms as President, organising numerous events and representing LAS regionally on CONSAL's Executive Board and the COMLA Council. She advocated for progressive initiatives that included establishing a library school, funding the education and professional development of librarians, and creating a permanent LAS Secretariat. In 2014, she was presented the LAS Lifetime Contribution Award for her commitment and contributions to the library service.

When she returned in 1967, she became Bank Negara Malaysia's Librarian. In 1980, she moved to the Secretary's Department followed by the Operational Planning Department. During her time at the bank, she developed the library and set up the Archives and Money Museum as well as helped to establish the National Automated Clearing House. She was conferred the Ahli Mangku Negara (AMN) for her contributions to the nation's Central Bank, the first lady officer in the bank to receive the award. Besides the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia council, Datin Ragayah has also served on committees like the Asian Ceramic Society, the West Malaysian Chapter, and the sub-committee to establish the Library of Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia among others. Upon retirement, Datin Ragayah became a freelance writer. Her notable works include The Lord of Kinta: The Biography of Dato' Panglima Kinta Eusoff and The Merican Clan: A Story of Courage and Destiny.

Shahaneem Hanoum Dadameah
(Shahaneem binti Mustafa)

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia
(1982-1983)

Datin Paduka Shahaneem Hanoum Dadameah (1949-2012) studied librarianship at Institute Teknologi Mara (ITM, presently known as UiTM) and worked there from 1969-1971. Later, she joined the Selangor Public Library Corporation (PPAS). In her 34 years tenure at PPAS, Datin Shahaneem Hanoum was an advocator of public libraries, especially for children's libraries to promote reading to young children. As a State Librarian, Datin Shahaneem Hanoum was reputedly known as the unofficial spokesperson to champion for funding and strategic networks in crafting five-year plans for public libraries in Selangor. Her advocacy work included presenting a joint conference paper Reaching Children Through Libraries at CONSAL VI in June 1983. She established the Malaysian Board on Books for Young Children in 2004, which aims to stimulate research and scholarly works in the field of children's literature and encourage publication and distribution of quality children's books in Malay and other languages, and also held position as Deputy President of the International Board of Books for Young People in 2005. Apart from her contribution to public librarianship in Malaysia, Datin Shahaneem Hanoum was also a writer of children's books, notably Lazy Kik and Badak the Foolish Rhinoceros.

Peggy Wai-Chee Hochstadt

President, Library Association of Singapore
(1982-1984)

Peggy Wai-Chee Hochstadt (1936-1991) started her career in 1960 as an Assistant Librarian in the University of Malaya (later University of Singapore) and became its Chief Librarian in 1978.

When the university was renamed in 1980, Peggy became the first Chief Librarian of the National University of Singapore (NUS) library until she retired in 1991. During her time in the NUS library, it underwent growth and development, much of which was owed to her professional capabilities and leadership. She was instrumental in the library's early embrace of information technology, which made possible the many benefits enjoyed by the users of the library today. In 1980, Peggy was appointed a member of the then Ministry of Culture's advisory committee on national information systems and later as a member of the Copyright Tribunal when it was formed in 1988. As a recognition to her contributions, Peggy was awarded the Public Administration Medal (Silver) in 1985.

He began his library career in 1969 at the National Library as a Library Officer and steadily progressed through the ranks to become Deputy Chief Executive of the National Library Board. Prior to this, he was a teacher in Malaysia. Throughout the span of his career, he spearheaded several initiatives such as training programmes for librarians and library assistants, drafting the National Library Board Act 1995, expanding the diverse services the National Library offered, and also enabled the hosting of the Asian Children's Festival and the World Library Summit. He was Chairman of the National Book Development Council of Singapore (currently known as the Singapore Book Council) and served on its Board till 2023. Beyond Singapore, Ramachandran's contributions to the development of libraries and librarianship include his past appointments as the first Secretary-General of CONSAL, the Secretary-General of IFLA, Vice-President of COMLA, and Chairman of CDNLAO. In recognition of his efforts in advocating and leading the development and recognition of librarianship, Ramachandran has been awarded CONSAL Outstanding Librarian Award, Singapore's Public Administration Medal (Silver), the LAS Professional Service Award, and the LAS Lifetime Contribution Award.

Rugayah binti Abdul Rashid

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1986-1989)

YBhg Puan Sri Datin Rugayah Abdul Rashid started her career as a Library Assistant at Singapore Polytechnic in 1959. In 1961, she was awarded a three-year scholarship for librarian training under the Colonial Development and Welfare Funds and took her library qualifications in Britain. While in the United Kingdom, she married the late Tan Sri Dr Ismail Hussein, former president of the Federation of National Writers Association of Malaysia (GAPENA), which led to her move to Malaysia. In 1967, Datin Rugayah became a founding member of Pertubuhan Tindakan Wanita Islam, a project-oriented charitable organisation dedicated towards addressing the welfare and needs of women and children. She was also the Head of the Tun Abdul Razak Library, Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM) at one point, and was Dean of the Faculty of Information Management, UiTM between 1970 and 1973. During her time as President, she advocated the sharing of resources and information among its members as well as proposed collaboration with the Library Association of Singapore for the same purpose.

Mariam binti Abdul Kadir

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1989-1993)

Datin Mariam Abdul Kadir was one of the earliest librarians to be recruited into the National Library Division of the National Archives in 1971. She worked her way up, eventually becoming the Director-General of the National Library of Malaysia (Perpustakaan Negara Malaysia) between 1990 and 1999. During her time as Director-General of the National Library, the National Preservation Policy was adopted, making the National Library a regional reference centre for the preservation of library materials. She also led the implementation of the digital library concept at the National Library in the 1990s, including the launch of a virtual library centre called the Connected Learning House in 1999 before she retired. She was Chairman of the organising committee for CONSAL X and served as President of the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia for three terms from 1989-1993.

Chew Wing Foong

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1993-1997)

Chew Wing Foong (1950-) was a secondary school teacher before he became a professional librarian in 1976. In the same year, he joined the U.S. Embassy as the Audio-visual Librarian at the Lincoln Cultural Centre, and later became its cultural specialist and senior programme specialist until his retirement in 2013. Chew joined the Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (PPM) in 1972 and served as Council member between 1978 and 1999, including two terms as President from 1993-1997. Between 1977 and 1980, Chew served as PPM's course coordinator to prepare Malaysians who wished to take the professional examinations by the British and Australian Library Associations. During his term as President, he was the Chairman of CONSAL X's Executive Board (1993-1996). At one point, he was also Chair of PPM's Library Services to Special Groups and helped to set up libraries in various welfare institutions. Besides library work, Chew's work at the Embassy brought him opportunities to serve on other committees such as Treasurer and Vice-President of the Malaysian Association of American Studies and President of the American Embassy Malaysian Employees Association, the latter for 21 years.

Isabel Yeo

President, Library Association of Singapore (1995-1997)

Isabel Yeo served as the Library Association of Singapore (LAS) President from 1995-1997, as part of an illustrious career in librarianship, and studied librarianship in New Zealand as a Colombo Plan scholar. Beginning her career in the National Library's (NL) Children's Service, she later headed NL's Microfilm Unit, and the Ministry of Trade and Industry's library, before becoming the Chief Librarian of The Straits Times Editorial Library. Yeo served as the Head of Library Two at Nanyang Technological University, before being appointed as Head Librarian of the National Institute of Education until 2009. In addition to serving as LAS President, Yeo was also a Joint Standing Committee Member on Bibliographical and Library Cooperation, the Chairperson of the Programmes Committee and Special Libraries Committee, and represented LAS on the National Book Development Council of Singapore, among other roles serving Singapore's libraries. She was awarded the 2016 LAS Lifetime Contribution Award.

Shahar Banun binti Jaafar

President, Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia (1997-1999)

Shahar Banun Jaafar (1946-2009) was trained in sociology and anthropology at Universiti Malaya before joining the library profession. Having her interest in librarianship sparked during a temporary job at Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka, Shahar Banun then pursued a Postgraduate Diploma in Librarianship from New South Wales in Australia, and later acquired a Master of Library Science from Indiana University, USA in 1984. She specialised in library automation and became actively involved in implementing IT in libraries. One notable project she was involved in was the PERDANA National Digital Library System (Sistem Perpustakaan Digital Negara), which involved all the university libraries, special libraries, state public library corporations, and the National Library of Malaysia (PNM), in collaboration with Telekom Malaysia and the Multimedia Development Corporation. The project started in 1999, with the main objective of providing information to all Malaysians for lifelong learning through digital means. Shahar Banun also served as the Chairman of the National Research Committee on Library and Information Services as well as on the CONSAL Executive Board (1993; 1997; 1999-2000). She retired as the Director-General of the National Library in July 2001, and remained a Committee Member to Persatuan Perpustakaan Malaysia from 2001-2003.
